

D. Documents Collection

This section provides an assortment of historical document blanks that you can remove from the binder and reproduce as needed. The selection of Union and Confederate Navy paperwork is based simply on what was available at the time of writing. The majority of the forms are recreations based on actual period samples; where the sample came from the “other” side, this is indicated and no claim is made to its use on both sides. Additionally, there are a number of forms that have proven useful in “enlisting” children or running a living history camp; these are plainly indicated as “not authentic.” Most forms were necessarily scaled down to allow for the binding in this book; each therefore carries an indication of the percentage by which it should be enlarged to be returned to its authentic size.

If you have authentic paperwork that is not represented here, but that you believe would be useful to the naval living history community, please contact the USNLP at email@usnlp.org and we’ll include it in the next revision to this edition.

(Note on deck logs: the fastidiousness with which these were filled out varied by ship and by watch officer. Even within the same squadron or small flotilla, one ship might record barometric pressures, another wind direction, and a third record the temperature and amount of fresh water on hand. Events of note could be limited to a single line or appear in copious detail.
